

THE DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC
THE UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA

presents

EXPLORATIONS VII

PROGRAM I

Malcolm Forsyth ..... EXPLORATION FANFARE
(b. 1936)

BRASS CHOIR
Malcolm Forsyth, conductor

Girolamo Frescobaldi ..... QUATRO CORRENTE
(1583-1643)

Dietrich Buxtehude ..... GIGUE FUGUE IN C
(1637-1707)

Gerhard Krapf ..... PARTITA ON "DIE GÜLDNE SONNE"
(b. 1924)

CHORALE
BASSADANZA
MADRIGAL
ARIETTA
FINALE

Gerhard Krapf, positiv

Joaquín Turina ..... FARRUCA FUGADA
(1882-1949)

Manuel de Falla ..... DANZA DEL MOLINERO
(1876-1946) (from "El Sombrero de Tres Picos")

Enrique Granados ..... LA MAJA Y EL RUISEÑOR
(1867-1916) (from "Goyescas")

Isaác Albeniz ..... SUITE IBERIA
(1860-1909)

EVOCACION
EL PUERTO

Ernesto Lejano, piano

INTERMISSION

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart ..... CONCERT RONDO IN E FLAT MAJOR, K. 371
(1756-1791)

Robert Schumann ..... ADAGIO AND ALLEGRO IN A FLAT MAJOR, Op. 70
(1810-1856)

David Hoyt, French horn
Janet Scott, piano

John Beckwith ..... THE GREAT LAKES SUITE
(b. 1927)

Diane Nelsen, soprano
Harold Wiens, baritone
Ernest Dalwood, clarinet
Edward Lincoln, piano
Joanne Ludbrook, cello

8 p.m.
September 21, 1978

Auditorium
Provincial Museum and Archives

Piano courtesy of Yamaha Pianos Coyne Ltd.

Next concert in this series: Friday, October 27, 1978
Convocation Hall
University of Alberta

THE GREAT LAKES SUITE

I. LAKE SUPERIOR

I am Lake Superior
Cold and gray.
I have no superior,
All other lakes haven't got what it takes.
All are inferior.
I am Lake Superior
Cold and gray
I am so cold
That because I chill them
the girls of Fort William
Can't swim in me.
I am so deep
That when people drown in me,
Their relatives weep
For they'll never find them.
In me swims the fearsome great big sturgeon.
My shores are made of iron
Lined with tough wizened trees.
No knife of a surgeon
Is sharper than these waves of mine
That glitter and shine
In the light of the moon.
In the light of the moon, my mother.
In the light of the sun, my grandmother.

II. LAKE MICHIGAN

By the shores of Lake Michigan
Chicago sits.
By the shores of Lake Michigan
Chicago sits.
By the shores of Lake Michigan
Lives the Michigander,
Lives the Michigoose.
Very silly people, they,
For they had the nerve to say
When they came to visit us
In the days of yore,
That the Yankees, the Yankees
Won the war.
"Bah!" said we patriotically
"How your wits do wander,
You Michigoose, you Michigander."
Right then and there
We had a fight with our cousins from Michigan
Who shortly after went back there again.
And since we won, we won,
We knew we were right.

III. LAKE HURON

Yoo-hoo! Yoo-hoo!
I'm blue, blue Lake Huron.
By my shores in fratricidal wars
Indians killed each other.
At Bayfield, people stop
To see me slop against the pier.
At Grandbend, people tend instead,
To look at each other.
The Au Sable River and the Maitland flow into me.
They think I'm a sea.
But Haw! Haw!
They're not through yet!
For blue and wet I flow
Into Lake St. Clair.
And Lake St. Clair into Lake Erie
So very, very weary.
And Lake Erie into Lake Ontario
Like a blue grain bag
At which that frowsy hag of a city Toronto nibbles.
And then the River St. Lawrence
Whose waters resemble those dark barreled waves
That drowned the Duke of Clarence.
So Haw! Haw! You Maitland River
And you Au Sable one too.
For when you flow into me
You're not at all through.

IV. LAKE ST. CLAIR

I once met a bear
Who swam in Lake St. Clair
I once met a bear
Who swam in Lake St. Clair.
And after the experience said,
"Hoity toit, I don't like the way
Detroit pollutes the air there."
And after a while
He added with a smile.
"And I don't like the way
Windsor does, either."

V. LAKE ERIE

Lake Erie is weary
Of washing the dreary
Crowds of the cities
That line her shores.
Oh, you know, the dirty people of Buffalo.
And those in Cleveland that must leave land
To see what the water's like.
And those that bike
Motorcar, bus and screeching train
Come from London in the rain
To Port Stanley where they spend the day
In deciding whether Grandbend might not
Have been a nicer place to go;
Up and down in thousands
They walk upon Lake Erie's sands.
Those in Cleveland say
As they gaze across the waters
Where swim their sons and daughters,
"Plainly, that distant speck
Must be Port Stanley."
Those in Port Stanley yawn,
"Oh, that lump in the mist over there Really must be populous Cleveland in Ohio."
But Lake Erie says, "I know
That people say I'm shallow
But you should see me when I go
With a thump and a plump,
At the falls of Niagara into Lake Ontario.
When you see that you'll admit
That I'm not just a shallow nitwit
But a lake that takes the cake for a gigantic, thundrous, tragic exit.

VI. LAKE ONTARIO

Left right march the waves
Towards the sandy shore.
Where I stand and motionless stare
At their blue roar.
Oh, they would stop and listen,
And be my blue audience.
If I could leap and glisten more than they;
More than they.
But although within me rush
Waves death cannot deny.
I must upon these coasts
Only listen to their cry.
My voice is soft
While theirs is loud, loud.
Their wavy boasts that do
Drown out all reply.
I am one,
They are a crowd.
Yet though I'm still and alone
Upon these thin saltless sands.
Thousands only shall hear the waves
Clap their fresh young hands
In lawless blue applause.
Because I held a megaphone
To their blue green blue noise,
Because I made this seashell,
This poem for your ear
My dear monseer, of their blue continual hell.